Use in binary form, without modification, is permitted provided that the following conditions are met:

Definitions

The software Statical Prism Standard Edition.

Initial trial license A license automatically installed the first time a user launches the software.

Evaluation license A license issued to a company for evaluation purposes.

Named user license A license of the software issued to an individual.

Company-wide license A license of the software issued to a company.

License expiration date The date the license is agreed to expire: Initial trial licenses expire 14 days after the software is launched for the first time. An evaluation license expires as agreed when the copyright holder issues the license. Named user and company-wide licenses expire a year after copyright holder issues the license.

Licensed user An individual who holds a named user license, or is employed by or contracted by a company holding a company-wide license.

Software update Any version of the software released by the copyright holder.

Fallback mode Feature-limited execution mode that corresponds to Statical Prism Community Edition. When the software runs in fallback mode, the text "Community Edition" will appear in the software's license information. If the text "Standard Edition" appears, then the software runs in normal node, i.e. not fallback mode.

Grants

A licensed user is granted right to use the software until the license expiration date.

A licensed user is granted right to install and use software updates until the license expiration date.

Restrictions

It is not allowed to re-package, re-brand, or re-distribute the software.

It is not allowed to reverse-engineer the software.

Named user licenses may not be used by individuals other than the licensed user.

Company-wide licenses may not be used by individuals, who are not employed by or contracted by the company holding the company-wide license.

It is not allowed to use the software beyond the license expiration date, unless the software is in fallback mode.
